

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A cooled turbine rotor blade comprises a blade body having a cooling passage so that cooling air is introduced, and a film cooling hole which is formed on the 5 surface of the blade body and includes an inlet opening and a wedge shaped spurt out opening. The film cooling hole is divided into at least two openings by a partition wall on the outlet side of the film cooling hole.